

Just showing that no matter how a person decodes, even the phonics or the anagram, or just googling any term, it eventually leads to the same thing everytime... it has to be because the pieces reveal the whole, and the whole reveals the pieces.

[So looking at the crazy progression below], you see a convergence of 2, in a face to face realization, that the other is you, and the story is to love your neighbor as yourself because they are you and you are them.... No matter how a person decodes, if they follow a consistent pattern throughout, it leads to love and face to face turning aka growth by facing off with another. The reason it works is because source is bringing all the pieces back home to source, through the 5 senses, colors, shapes, words, phonics, music,, whatever, its all from source which is the process no matter who it is they are being hit by source and therefore being pulled back to source.

The code below is not even close to being perfect, but you can see a pattern evolving none the less...
